This week's highlighted course: The Beat: New York Neighborhoods

Taught by veteran New York Times reporter and editor Frank Flaherty, here's what students say about the course:

- Francis Flaherty is the best professor I have had at NYU, hands down. He gives the greatest advice and support. I truly believe I've improved as a reporter.
- I loved our bi-weekly class discussions. This has been one of my most memorable and inspiring journalism courses.

I was endlessly enthralled by how we placed a story on our table every afternoon, dissected it, appraised every feature, diagnosed every flaw, and then assembled it back together again seamlessly and without a single scar. This class taught me how to think like a writer.

- [I have] never before have I taken such an inspiring course as well as had so much respect for the professor. . . Avaluable, unique and inspiring learning experience. Prof Flaherty is a phenomenal professor.
- Prof. Flaherty is quite literally a journalistic sage.
